

ENGLAND MAY YET EXHIBIT AT FRISCO

Suggestion to Exposition to Offer Great Britain Separate Pavilion.

WOULD COST $1,250,000

Tariff, Says Sir Robert Balfour, One of the Biggest Drawbacks.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.
LONDON, Aug. 7.—There is some chance after all that Great Britain will be represented at the Panama-Pacific Exposition despite the statement by the Board of Trade that manufacturers did not care to incur the expense of sending goods to California.

It is said in authoritative quarters that the San Francisco authorities adopt a suggestion made in high sources here to offer to the British Government a pavilion in which all British exhibits would be placed instead of breaking them up in different sections of the grounds the British manufacturers would reconsider their decision.

Sir Robert Balfour of the Balfour Williamson Company, which has extensive business dealings with San Francisco, called to this effect today to the exposition authorities. He did not say that it was certain that the proposal would be accepted, but that there was a good chance that it would be.

Cost Would Be Great.

The correspondent of THE SUN says Sir Robert just after he sent his cablegram. He said he had sent a long letter to the President of the Board of Trade setting forth the considerations governing the whole question and strongly urging that Great Britain should be represented. The President of the Board of Trade sent the communication to the Board of Trade and the Board of Trade sent it to the exposition authorities. Sir Robert said the Board of Trade and the exposition authorities are very friendly toward the exhibition project, but there is not much money about just at present and manufacturers will not go to the great cost and trouble necessary.

Asked if he thought the Government's estimate of $1,250,000 as the cost of an official representation at the exposition was exaggerated, Sir Robert replied: "No, I do not think so. If anything, it is an underestimate, because if the manufacturers are willing to send goods they certainly are not inclined to pay for the privilege of doing so, and thus the Government would have to pay the bill. Hence it is a matter for the Treasury, the estimates of which are so finely cut every year as to leave nothing for unexpected expenditures."

Tariff the Real Cause.

Sir Robert Balfour admitted that the tariff difficulty is responsible for the apathy among the manufacturers here, who do not see any chance of benefiting in the long run by any efforts which they might make to sell goods in America. "In any case," he concluded, "I have not abandoned hope. There can be no question that it would be to the interest of our country and improve our relations with the United States if the British Government reversed its decision. The next move is, however, with San Francisco."

"TIMES" SEES BRITISH ERROR.

England Should Participate in Exposition, Paper Says.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.
LONDON, Aug. 8.—In an editorial headed "An Error of Judgment" the Times says this morning:

"The Government, we are convinced, has made a mistake in refusing to take part in the Panama-Pacific exposition. Reviewing the situation the newspaper says it has no doubt that the Government's explanation is the real cause of the apathy which is being shown by the manufacturers. It adds that 'Americans who know us best' will entertain no doubts in the matter, but the great mass of Americans will think otherwise. The Times regards this as inevitable. It goes on to say that from a commercial viewpoint participation is hardly justified, but the Government should look at the question from a broader point of view than the value of the exhibition, as it undoubtedly would lead to the furtherance of good relations between the countries. The Government's decision is looked on therefore as a 'blunder,' deplorable, but natural and pardonable, and the Times points out that it is not yet too late to repair it."

SAYS GERMANY IS OUT OF IT.

No Participation in Frisco Exposition, It Is Said.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.
LONDON, Aug. 8.—The Daily Chronicle's Berlin correspondent says today that Germany is absolutely reliable authority that the German Government will not take part in the Panama-Pacific exposition. Business men are almost unanimous in declining to participate owing to the cost of sending exhibits to San Francisco and also on account of the tariff.

Herr Ballin, chairman of the board of directors of the Hamburg-Amerikanische Linie, strongly advocates participation in the exposition by the German Government.

FORMER CANADA PREMIER HERE

Sir Mackenzie Bowell Blames Canal for England's Exposition Stand.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, former Premier of Canada, who is 84 years old and in vigorous health, and attending to his duties as editor and owner of the Belleville, Ont., Intelligencer, arrived yesterday by the Red Cross liner Florida from New York. He has been attending the meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge of British America. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Evelyn McCarthy, and his granddaughter, Miss Evelyn McCarthy.

Sir Mackenzie said he believed the refusal of the British Government to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition was due entirely to the position the United States had taken in regard to canal tolls, despite all English denials. He also believed that Great Britain should make a naval base of Bermuda for her West Indian fleet.

"I don't see why the United States should feel affronted if England establishes a naval station at Bermuda," he said. "Such preparation is merely for the protection of England and is not directed against the United States."

FORECLOSE ON SCHRANK HOUSE.

Roosevelt's Assistant Inherited Tenement Building From His Uncle.

Foreclosure proceedings against John Schranks, the man who shot Col. Roosevelt in Milwaukee last October, were begun in the County Clerk's office in Brooklyn yesterday by the City Real Estate Company. The proceedings involve a $10,000 mortgage on a tenement house at 433 East Eighth-street, Manhattan. John Flammang, who was Schranks' uncle, left him the building. Schranks sold at the time it was worth $25,000. Later the records showed the house to be held in the name of Dr. H. Hummel, a lawyer, of 34 Marble Hill avenue.

200 FOOT FALL ENDS CAPT. CODY'S CAREER

American Cowboy-Aviator and Passenger Killed at Aldershot, England.

BECAME BRITISH CITIZEN

Showed Great Perseverance in Developing the Science of Aeronautics.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN.
LONDON, Aug. 7.—Capt. S. F. Cody, American cowboy, who developed the science of aeronautics under the auspices of the British War Office, was killed today in an airplane accident at Aldershot. Lieut. W. Evans, a pupil of Cody's, who was in the airplane, met death at the same time. The men were in a new hydroaeroplane which Capt. Cody had designed and built in preparation for a race around England and Scotland for a prize of $25,000.

Cody and his pupil were trying out the new machine, which weighed a ton, had a wing span of sixty feet and was equipped with a motor of horse-power motor. Evidently the craft proved too heavy for the wings, for, according to witnesses of the accident, including Capt. Cody's two sons, the wings seemed to crumple and the machine shot to earth a distance of about 200 feet. The two men were flying over open country, most of which is owned by the Government, and had just reached the Government House when the machine collapsed. Many persons rushed to the spot and found both Cody and his pupil, Lieut. Evans dead. Among the first to reach the bodies were Cody's two sons, Leon and Frank.

So great was the force of the fall that the machine was shattered and the aeroplane smashed to splinters. The bodies were removed to the military mortuary by members of the Royal Flying Corps. An inquest will be held to-morrow.

Cody a Picturesque Figure.

Cody was one of the most picturesque and intelligent figures in aviation circles. That he should have won success and popularity in England was remarkable because his picturesque, theatrical methods failed to impress the British people when he first came here. He wore a sombrero, a long mustache and an imperial with long hair and was almost the double of Buffalo Bill. In fact, one day when King George was addressing him, the King called him "Buffalo Bill" and Cody, mistaking him for the moment for the famous cowboy, and thereafter Cody announced he was Col. Cody. He usually received the title of Captain, however.

Because of his appearance and of his enthusiastic and theatrical manner he did not win support in this country. Arriving here from the United States he went to Aldershot and began to experiment with kites. Because of the genius he displayed for devising and making various aeronautic articles he finally received authority from the War Office to go ahead with experiments under their auspices. He received very little money, however, and worked on the work and he spent much of his own.

He finally turned out an aeroplane, but for many days he kept practicing with it. He made a number of flights, but he was over the grass while thousands stood by and waited for him to fly. Cody took his time and finally the curious persons in the crowd were satisfied. Then he attempted flights and at last smashed his machine and had many perilous mishaps.

Won Against Big Odds.

The War Office lost faith in him and in September, 1902, served notice on him and he could keep his aeroplane in order to keep quarters for only a month longer. He no longer received the help of soldiers and was compelled to hire civilians. Cody and his aeroplane were forced to make several thousand yards. After that he made numerous flights and won the support of the British public. Then the Government authorities were secured for their help.

The result was that Cody received a new contract with the Government and carried on his experiments on a much larger and more effective scale. His success continued, although he was hurt several times in accidents and almost lost his life. On one occasion he struck and killed a cow and had to pay $400 damages. Cody was the first to enter for the $50,000 prize which he had won in England.

Cody applied for papers as an English citizen. He did so because of objections made to his connection with the army when an American citizen. Having obtained his papers he was allowed to keep his War Office. He developed as a flier and in 1912 won $25,000 in prizes. One of $20,000 in the British army aviation tests at Salisbury Plain and another of $5,000 in the British subjects who used machines built entirely in England of English material.

The attitude of the War Office to him is shown in a message which the Secretary of State for War sent to-day to Mrs. Cody: "The science of aeronautics owes much to his mechanical genius and courage and perseverance. The British War Office has special reason to mourn the loss of his valuable services, both in regard to man lifting kites and his contribution to military aeronautics."

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 7.—John E. Bryant, a California aviator, was killed today when his aeroplane fell from the roof of a building in this city. His back, neck and both legs were broken. A fat woman climbed into the machine last week to have her picture taken. The plane was under the strain of today's accident.

INSANITY ON THE INCREASE.

Most Alarming Ill Health Symptoms, Says British Alienist.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The most alarming ill health symptom in the world to-day is the increase of insanity, according to Sir James C. Browne, one of England's best known alienists.

Presiding in the psychiatry section of the seventeenth International Congress of Medicine to-day, Sir James declared that the worldwide increase of lunacy is most alarming and most unaccountable.

Dr. Harold Stiles of Edinburgh, presiding over the section devoted to children's diseases, asserted that at least 10 per cent of the milk sold in the big cities is tubercular and therefore the cause of much infant mortality. He said it was surprising how the doctors could encourage the use of raw milk in the rearing of children. The eminent Koch and his disciples, Stiles said, were mistaken in not taking account of milk as a source of infection.

BALKAN PEACE NOT YET SURE.

Eleventh Hour Hitch Looked For From Austria's Attitude.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN.
LOVCE, Aug. 7.—According to a dispatch from Bucharest the peace protocol which was expected to be signed yesterday has not yet been drawn up, but one delegate from each of the countries represented at the conference has been directed to proceed at once to this task, and it is believed the treaty will be ready for signature to-day.

Premier of Greece declared yesterday that his country and Bulgaria are in complete agreement on the frontier question.

It is regarded here that it is by no means certain yet that the treaty actually will be signed and an eleventh hour hitch is looked for in view of Austria's reported determination to insist on revision of the treaty by the Powers.

The representatives of the Powers at Constantinople yesterday informed the Porte that Adrianople must be handed back to the Bulgarians and that Turkey would be forced to respect the treaty of London signed by his country's representatives. It is said here that the Powers will take such a firm stand in this matter that Bulgaria will not have to fight the Turks again.

ANDRADE SAYS CASTRO IS NOT IN VENEZUELA

General, Just Arrived, Declares Trouble at Home, Is Mere Mutiny of Soldiers.

CASTRO has not arrived in Venezuela, says Gen. Andrade, who came to Imperial from La Guayra yesterday, and if he did come would be unable to start a revolution. The Venezuelan who preceded Castro as President thought that the present crisis marked the beginning of a much exaggerated uprising among the soldiers.

"Venezuela was peaceful when I left three weeks ago," he said. "It is anxious to remain so, realizing its great obligation to keep the peace, so that industries opened by the Panama Canal may flourish. We realize that American trade expansion is toward the south."

The General commended President Wilson's policy toward South America. "That contentment is very rich," he said, "and as yet undeveloped. French and German exploitations have been regarded unfavorably. As to Mexico, I believe the urgency of intervention would have to be made very plain in order not to break up the present good faith."

He said that his coming to the United States was entirely a personal matter. "Cipriano Castro as President had servants, but no real friends," the General said. "His power is gone. Next week there is to be an election in Venezuela. There may be a new President, but he will come to office without strife, and he will not be Castro."

He added that he much preferred diplomacy for himself.

HE WHO BEATS MEARS MUST FLY, HE ASSERTS

Andre Jaeger-Schmidt Congratulates His Rival, "Evening Sun" Globe Trotter.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN.
PARIS, Aug. 7.—Talking today of John Mearns' record trip around the world in 35 days, 21 hours for THE EVENING SUN, Andre Jaeger-Schmidt, who held the record until yesterday, said to the correspondent of THE SUN:

"One thing alone consoles me for being beaten, but it consoles me greatly—being beaten by a confere and an American. Mearns' trip was remarkably combined and carried out with energy and precision. He could not compliment him too highly. His success was no surprise to me, however. As soon as I saw this sound, reliable looking man with open, resolute, coming toward me on the platform of the Gare du Nord on his arrival in Paris, I knew he was going to beat my record. I was glad because I felt he was sympathetic, like the great nation he represents."

"There is true joy in any sport to be beaten by a man who deserves victory. My greatest wish now would be if my competitors permitted it to try to beat my fortunate rival with the firm hope of seeing him in turn take his revenge. Progress comes from struggling and happiness in meeting courteous rivals. Mearns' performance seems to me to be the maximum of what can be demanded of the ordinary means of communication. To do better one would have to abandon the ordinary rule of the world and take to the air. It would be necessary to tour the world in an aeroplane. I feel sure Mearns is already contemplating that and I am meditating on the scheme myself."

Writing on the Mearns tour in EXCELSIOR, M. Jaeger-Schmidt says:

"I must confess that the title of record man for a tour of the world was a certain source of pride to me. It gave me a standing among lots of people whose ideas of geography are vague. My barber, when asked for information about Central Africa, 'Cab touts replace the usual 'Mon Prince' with 'Monsieur le Record Man' when offering to look for a cab for me. The conductor of the autobus in which I travel often congratulates me on having escaped from the hands of cannibals during my trip."

"Now that I am beaten perhaps my indulgent friends will still leave me the courtesy title just as ex-presidents are always called 'Monsieur le President.' Then in a few more years people will point to me as the who went around the world in thirty-nine days and wonder why I took so long about it."

Immediately upon arriving in New York on Wednesday evening THE EVENING SUN's globe-trotter sent the following telegram: "To the President of the United States, the White House, Washington, D. C.: 'I have the honor to announce that as the representative of THE EVENING SUN I have succeeded in circumnavigating the earth in 35 days, 21 hours, 35 minutes, 45 seconds. Permit me to acknowledge with gratitude the splendid assistance which I have received from United States diplomatic and consular officials at every important stage of the journey.'

To the above he received the following reply: "The White House, Washington, D. C.: 'John Henry Mearns, THE EVENING SUN, New York city: 'I congratulate you on your interesting achievement. WOODROW WILSON.'"

SIX IDENTIFY DI MARTINO.

Detectives Say Hat Is Passed to Defendant Policeman's Alleged Murderer.

Six young Italians identified Charles Di Martino as the slayer of Policeman Patrick Carter at a hearing before Coroner Jacob Shogren in his office at Tremont and Arthur avenues yesterday.

Di Martino, or Di Monico, as he is known to the police, was lined up with nine others and the witnesses picked him from among the ten.

Twelve witnesses were taken to the scene of the shooting yesterday and pointed out the spot where it occurred and the course which the murderer took after the crime.

Detectives who have been securing the Mulberry Bend district reported that collections are being taken there to aid in the defence of Di Martino. They say the hat was passed in one of the moving picture shows and other places.

MISS KRILL SILENT ON REPORTED MARRIAGE

Accused Nurse Refuses to Tell Whether or Not She Was Dr. Tron's Wife.

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Miss Emma Elizabeth Krill, held for the murder of Dr. Stanley E. Tron, again to-night defied those who wanted to know whether or not she was married and society to the physician and the course which the physician and she were taking to-day.

"I will not say anything," she said. "If the question is asked me in the examination to-morrow I will tell the truth."

When she appears before City Judge James K. Croft on August 7, 1913, Miss Krill will not have many questions to answer, because her examination will be put over for some days.

I. Sidney Bernstein telegraphed from New York this morning that he would be in Utica to-morrow to represent Miss Krill. An hour later he was in communication with District Attorney Fuller, who announced that the examination would be postponed.

It was evident that Mr. Fuller did not like the turn affairs had taken. He counted on the examination taking place and had his chief witness, Dr. Albert N. Hamilton of Auburn, buy all day working on the dozen or more bottles of liquor and papers of tablets and powder taken from the effects of Miss Krill. He refused to discuss them.

To-night the District Attorney embarked on a new line of investigation. Shortly after the death of Dr. Tron, on Sunday, July 22, Miss Krill told a reporter that she and the doctor were married in Jersey City by a magistrate in 1911. This information came to the hands of the District Attorney late this evening and he at once began inquiries. Miss Krill swore at the corner's inquest that she was not married.

Miss Krill is short of funds and this noon when she had paid for an outside lunch, had only three cents left. This seemed to depress her greatly.

Mansfield's Auto Kills Boy.
